NOTICE.—Miss Addie Stewart has returned from a six-weeks' stay in Cincinnati and will trim for Mrs. Estill this season. She would be glad to have all her old friends and as many new ones as possible to call and see her.

The temperature was 26 degrees Fahrenheit Tuesday morning, and ice was plentiful. As some of the fruit trees were beginning to show the color of their bloom they were liable to injury unless the dryness of the air prevented it.

BAKERY NEEDED.—If there is a good business baker anywhere looking for a location this town is the place for him. There is none here. The people would be good patrons of a good bakery that turned out first-class bread and other products at a reasonable price.

The noted stallion J. S. Brown will make the season of 1900 at the same barn on upper Prickly Ash. The get of this horse bring the biggest prices. You will make a mistake if you breed to this celebrated stallion. DR. G. W. CONNER.

BILL CRAWPS.—North Bethel, Mar. 9th, 1900.—OUTLOOK: I think the is a prospect for an advance here, as there is a prospect for a sale of much rope in France. I see from the papers that Uncle Jack Chinn is going on lecture tour on the history of Senator Wm. Goebel from his birth to his assassination. We presume he will draw. If he does not draw a crowd he can draw his Smith Wesson.

A CARD OF THANKS.—Allow through the columns of your excellent paper to thank the dear, good people of Owingsville for the sympathy and many acts of benevolence which we have been so grateful and appreciative recipients of at your hands during recent illness. Also to Dr. Gudgeon for his faithful attention and professional skill as a physician. MR. AND MRS. J. R. NELSON.

DARING FLYING SQUIRREL.—The ladies of J. M. Richards' household had been hearing a noise in a wardrobe in one of the upstairs rooms of his residence and supposed a rat had gotten in by some means, the wardrobe had been kept locked except when they were using it. Last week Miss Lee Barnes, a neighbor, came to the door and told them that she had seen a squirrel jump out of the wardrobe and there in the bed were three young flying squirrels good fresh. They set the box of the bed and the mother squirrel went to her young ones, seeming very gentle. The ladies are taking care of the interesting family. The room containing the wardrobe was formerly used as a bath-room and when a change was made the hole through which the water-pipe in run was not closed up. The squirrel could have come through the hole, but as there is no hole in the wardrobe and it was kept locked is a mystery how the squirrel got in. The most reasonable conclusion is that the squirrel darted in the wardrobe some time when it was open and had given birth to her brood while a prisoner.

TAYLOR RODGERS' DEATH.—Taylor Rodgers died Wednesday of last week at one o'clock p. m. of consumption at the County Infirmary, of which he had been an inmate for the past year. The body was taken to Bethel Thursday for burial. Taylor was aged between thirty-five and forty years. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rodgers, of near Reynoldsville. Both parents died several years ago. Taylor was a well-behaved young man, but was afflicted from childhood and rather disposed to wander aimlessly about. It is not known that any of his family survive.

GRADUATED.—The OUTLOOK acknowledges receipt of an invitation to attend the commencement exercises of the Pulte Medical College of Cincinnati, Ohio, April 9th. Dr. W. O. Phillips, of Grange City, son of Dr. Wm. E. Phillips, of Wyoming, is one of the graduating class of seventeen members, including five ladies. Dr. Phillips is a bright and ambitious young man, and entering the profession freshly equipped with the knowledge and training imparted at college he begins his career under auspicious circumstances. Great success is wished him.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF BATH CO.—You are requested to meet at the various precincts of the county on the 21st day of April, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m. to organize and elect a new committee for the ensuing year. This is important and you will prove your interest by the selection of active and competent committeemen. You are also called upon to meet in mass convention at Owingsville on the 28th day of April, 1900, at the Court-house at 2 o'clock p. m. to select and instruct delegates to the Congressional convention for the 9th Congressional District of Ky., which meets at Ashland, Boyd Co., Ky., on the 24 day of May, 1900, to nominate a candidate for this District at the next November election. J. A. BARNES.

SOLDIERS' COMPLAINT FROM THE PHILIPPINES.—Silyu, Negros Isle, Feb. 17th, 1900.—Please publish the following. For the kind consideration of your many readers I wish to add some facts to the history of the soldiers in the Philippines, and the valorous actions of the soldiers in the Philippines, but you will see, if ever, read of what these brave soldiers are subjected to by the officers who rule them. Wm. the Czar of Russia, in his gloomy mood, would not dare to step out justice in a more tyrannical way than these monarchs do here. It is nothing to see a man in the stocks for the slightest offense. The summary court gives a soldier a sentence of fourteen days in solitary confinement, no bread and no water. These things have passed month after month, and nothing would have been said about it, but these monarchs have just imposed nothing upon us that made every diabolical blood boil, and which would appeal to every American. The circumstances are as follows:

The food in Co. M, 6th U. S., has been so poor that it is impossible for a white man to live on it, consequently the men connected restaurant bills, also some poor bills, which they invariably paid. But this last pay day some of the bills were not paid, and the parties owing the debt, were put in prison, the doors closed, making it very uncomfortable. The men were told to keep away from the native prisoners, as "there are three cases of small-pox in this prison." It might be well to state that these bills were owed to a native who only four months ago took out papers making him an American citizen, and two months ago he with fifteen others was arrested for treason, and they are confined in the same prison. He was helping lay a plot which if it had not been revealed before the fatal blow was struck would have been the darkest in modern history; and our American soldiers are suffering almost death on the account of this second round. Now, kind readers, think earnestly: Is there no redress for such outrages as this? Or will we after leaving our homes and coming to this dreadful place to fight for our country have to stand these awful outrages imposed upon us? Yours respectfully, JOHN SORRELL, Co. M, 6th U. S. Infantry.

Why is it that one of the get of J. S. Brown sold in the fall of 1899 for $280 when so many horses bred by other stallions sold for less than $100? Simply because the get of J. S. Brown have the size, style and shape. DR. G. W. CONNER.

The Mt. Sterling Advocate says Miss Mattie Visscher, of Montgomery, Alabama, will be married to Mr. Richard Neal Lightfoot on June 20th. Miss Mattie is a daughter of the late Frederick Visscher and was reared in Owingsville.

COURT DAY.—A cold east wind made it disagreeable on the streets Monday. There was only a fair-sized attendance at the monthly market, the farmers being largely kept at home by reason of being behind with their farm work. The merchants did a fair business. Several horse-buyers came to town, two from Georgia, were looking for stock, but had slight success, as the surplus horses and mules have been sold and shipped away. Some sales were made of milch cows and calves at fair prices. The 125 head of cattle offered were only partly sold, and were rather slow sale. But few stallions were noticed on the show grounds. Three are very fine ones—Phillips & Anderson's Carlisle, Dr. Geo. W. Conner's J. S. Brown and John R. Vici's Red Bill.

Herbert Spencer and Kentucky.

[Louisville Post.]

Appropos of the situation in this State it will be well for every Kentuckian to re-read the interview of Herbert Spencer in which, after his visit to this country, he states his opinion of our institutions and people. It is from one of the greatest thinkers of the century and is prophetic. These are pertinent parts: "Beyond question," said Mr. Spencer, "in respect of mechanical appliances, the Americans are ahead of all nations. If, along with your material progress, there went equal progress of a higher kind, there would remain nothing to be wished."

"That is an ambiguous qualification. What do you mean by it?"

"You will understand when I tell you what I was thinking the other day. After pondering over what I have seen of your vast manufacturing and trading establishments, the rush of traffic in your street cars and elevated railways, I was suddenly reminded of the Italian republics of the middle ages; and recalled the fact that, while there was growing up in them great commercial activity, a development of the arts which made them the envy of Europe and a building of princely mansions which continue to be the admiration of travelers, their people were gradually losing their freedom."

"Do you mean this as a suggestion that we are doing the like?"

"It suggests to me you are. You retain the forms of freedom, but so far as men gather, there has been a considerable loss of the substance. The political machinery as it is now that contemplated at the outset of your political life, America exemplifies, at the other end of the social scale, a change analogous to that which has taken place under sundry despots. You know that in Japan, before the recent revolution, the divine ruler, the Mikado, nominally supreme, was practically a puppet in the hands of his chief minister, the Shogun. Here, it seems to me, that the 'sovereign people' is fast becoming a puppet which moves and speaks as wire-pullers determine."

If Mr. Spencer had foreseen the enactment of the Goebel election law and the overthrow of the real liberties of Kentuckians under "the forms of law" which have been set up to cover the frauds upon their ballot and sovereignty, and to subject them to a government of politicians for politicians, he could not have more exactly described our situation. He continues: "Within the forms of your constitution there has grown up this organization of professional politicians, altogether uncontemplated at the outset, which has become in large measure the ruling power."

"But will not education and the diffusion of political knowledge fit men for free institutions?"

"No. It is essentially a question of character and only in a secondary degree a question of knowledge. Not lack of information, but lack of certain moral elements, is the worst of the evil."

"You mean that people have not a sufficient sense of public duty?"

"Well, that is one way of putting it; but there is a more specific way. Probably it will surprise you if I say that the American has not, I think, a sufficiently quick sense of his own claims, and at the same time, as a necessary consequence, not a sufficiently quick sense of the claims of others—for the two traits are organically related. I observe that you tolerate various small interferences and dictations which Englishmen are prone to resist. It is this easy-going readiness to permit small transgressions, because it would be troublesome or profitless or unpopular to oppose, which leads to the habit of acquiescence in wrong and the decay of free institutions. Free institutions can be maintained only by citizens each of whom is instant to oppose every illegitimate act, every assumption of supremacy, every official excess of power, however trivial it may seem. If, as you say of the American, he pauses to consider whether he can afford the time and trouble;—whether it will pay;—corruption is sure to creep in. As one of your early statesmen said: 'The price of liberty is eternal vigilance.'"

This is truth. Kentucky affords an illustration which every thinking man sees. We have tried the 'let-things-alone-and-they-will-become-better' practice, and we have found that instead of becoming better they have become worse. It is always so. Bad conditions never right them-
